TESTING HIGHER ORDER THINKING

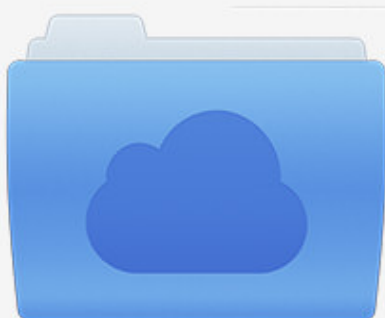

The nurse is making a home visit to a 75-y-o male client who has had Parkinson's disease for the past five years. Which finding has the greatest implication for this patient's care?

- A. The client's wife tells the nurse that the grandchildren have not been to visit for over a month.
- B. The nurse notes that there are numerous throw rugs throughout the client's home.
- C. The client has a towel wrapped around his neck that the wife uses to wipe her husband's face.
- D. The client is sitting in an armchair, and the nurse notes that he is gripping the arms of the chair.

NOTE: This item tests higher order thinking skills because it requires that test-takers be able to apply multilogical thinking and a high level of discrimination to choose the best answer.
